MINDSET MASTERY CLUB

QUANTUM LEAP YOUR SUCCESS

You2 - Make your move before you're ready

Don’t bog down in geting prepared for this. Whatever else you need will come as you go.

A person could make a career out of laying the groundwork to do something really big. Please understand — you don't "prepare" for a quantum leap. You make it, and then fine tune your approach. You go for it, instead of forever getting ready so you will be sure to get it right. "Zero defects" is a hostile concept in the pursuit of you2.

First you act, then you frame out the details of your strategy. Move on your dream ... start ... and let what happens help you develop a coherent game plan. Mobility is the crucial element. Strategy formulation then evolves naturally out of your discovery process. You'll discover, once underway, that you know more than you know you know. Just trust your instincts.

Once again, a quantum leap is something you are already prepared to do! It's not some absurd, wild-eyed scheme that calls for a fantastic stroke of luck just to have an outside chance of working. It's not an example of your reach exceeding your grasp. And it's most definitely not a matter of going for some grand goal that calls for painstaking preparation.

A quantum leap is a move that is yours for the taking. Right now. It represents a giant step you can make merely by deciding to and opening yourself up to the resources presently available to serve you.

"Getting ready" is, quite frankly, a stalling tactic, an act of anxiety, a con game you're working on yourself.

You are already positioned to escape to a higher plane of performance. If you wait until you can get it perfect, you will never get it at all.

The time to start is now. you2 can only occur in the present.

- Price Pritchett

MINDSET MASTERY CLUB

QUANTUM LEAP YOUR SUCCESS

Make your move before you're ready

1. Write your goal in the present tense.

I am so happy and grateful....

2. i) On a scale of 1-10, how would you grade yourself in the area of firm and definite decision making?

Low 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 High

ii) Provide the main reason for your score.

Make your move before you're ready

3. When you make a decision, do you generally consult with others for their opinion? If so, when and why?

4. Have you been avoiding making a decision about something important in your life? If so, what decision?

Make your move before you're ready

5. Create a decision list. This list will consist of all the decisions you've been putting off until now. Once you've created your decision list, numerically label them from most important to least important. Begin from the most important and work your way through the list, one by one, following through on all your decisions. We encourage you to first decide that you will tick off every item on that list. As you go, notice how much lighter you feel. Making decisions is a great way to get energy flowing more freely in your life.